POISONED WHISKEY RESULTS IN EIGHTEEN DEATHS

Druggist is Arrested as Death Total Grows

(Special to The Herald)
Burlington, Vt., Nov. 3.—Latest reports from Bristol tell of 18 deaths as the result of wholesale poisoning from whiskey purchased at the drug store of Dr. C. A. Bisbee, in the making of which wood alcohol was used.
Investigators have found that at least 75 persons purchased the poisoned whiskey, and it is feared that the death total will be increased to fifty.
A quantity of the liquor was bought by farmers far up on the mountain, and a strenuous effort is being made to get word to them in time to prevent them from drinking the poisoned mixture. Among the dead is one woman.
As death after death was reported, feeling in the town ran high, and several small demonstrations were made. Bitter remarks against Bisbee were voiced by excited men, and fearing that an attempt would be made to lynch the prisoner, who was arrested on Monday following the death of three men, Sheriff George Farr hurried him away to the Addison County jail in Middlebury. He may be tried tomorrow.

Bisbee has been in business in Bristol for many years. He was formerly a physician and conducted a store in Middlebury. He has been twice convicted within two years for illegal sale of liquor and in both cases was fined $300.

MAYOR YEATON ENTERS PROTEST

Criticises Board of Registrars at the Closing Hour.

Mayor Harry H. Yeaton appeared before the board of registrars at noon today where he entered a vigorous protest with the chairman. It was the closing hour and twenty or more men were in the rooms waiting for a certificate allowing them to vote in the several wards. The mayor claimed that the board should furnish certificates for all those who were in the room at 12 o'clock providing they could prove that they were entitled to a vote. The chairman and others of the board quoted the law which states that the board shall work from 8 a. m. till 12 noon.
The mayor still insisted that such law did not prevent them from hearing those in the rooms that came there long before the closing hour.
Some members of the board informed the mayor that they did not believe that they were obliged to hold any session on election day if they chose not to do so and that those who came there late have nobody to blame but themselves, as they should have appeared at the rooms during some of the previous six meetings held for the purpose of adding names to the checklists.
What will develop from the mayor's appeal remains to be seen.

Only Sure Corn Cure Ever Known

"GETS-IT" the New Way, 2 Drops Do It

To endure the pains and tortures caused by a little thing like a corn is ridiculous, simply because it is unnecessary. The new-plan corn cure,

"GETS-IT" is the first one ever known to remove corns without pain, without pain and without trouble. This is why it is the biggest-selling corn cure in existence today. It is now used by millions, because it does away with sticky tape, with plasters and cotton rings that shift their position and press down into the corn, with knives that "raw up" the toe, with "harpers" that cause pressure and pain, with razors and files, clawing and pulling at a corn.

"GETS-IT" is applied in two seconds. Two drops applied with the glass rod do the work. Pain goes, the corn shrivels, vanishes. Accept no substitutes. Try it on any corn, wart, callus or bunion, tonight.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25¢ a bottle, or sent direct by The Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Speaking of the service, or rather lack of service that the Atlantic Shore Line Railway gives its patrons, the absence of electric lights on the ferry Alice Howard is about the limit. Since that boat ran around on Clark's Island, a few weeks ago, there have been no lights, because of the removal of the dynamo. This has been sent to the Town House, Kennebunk, and even the officials declare may not be returned for some time. Have we got to put up with a few dim oil lanterns hanging around, until the return of the dynamo? Is this what the railway calls service? This is a case where the slogan "Service First" should be adopted as well as "Safety First."

A MOST EXCELLENT BILL AT MUSIC HALL

Another treat is offered to the music lovers of Portsmouth and vicinity in the form of the Month Trio appearing in "Believe from Sunny Italy" at the Portsmouth Theatre this week.

Their songs, some old, some new, are excellently rendered, for the trio are highly talented singers and musicians. The instruments used are the mandolin and guitar. The trio appear in blue silk costumes, trimmed with gold, in the afternoon, and in white silk trimmed with gold, in the evening.

These costumes are very beautiful, especially so under the rays of a spot light. A feature of the program is the song "Mama Mia," written by Signor Enrico Caruso, and sung in Italian by one of the trio, who sings both baritone and soprano. Another song used is composed and sung by its composer a member of the act. Altogether the act is one of the best of its kind seen in this city for some time.

The Gleaners present a novelty, juggling and balancing act, the kind that is different from the others. A series of novel and odd objects are used, and the ideas are new and original. The act is also well staged.

Higginbotham and Legore, Two of Yale's Football Stars This Year

HIGGINBOTHAM O O LEGORE

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 3.—Harry kicked over the heads of his opponents, fullback of the Yale team, has parents and an one of the team have been doing some of the best punting ever seen nearly 70 yards. The scored this year that has been seen on the Yale's solitary touchdown. Higginbotham, in the game lost to Wash- ington, an end, has also been playing long and Jefferson, Legore repeated a good game.

DAILY SPORT LETTER

New York, Nov. 3.—It's almost time that some of the football managers awakened to the fact that it might be a good proposition to stage one of their big games at the Polo Grounds in New York.

New York is football mad. Since Columbia quit footballing herabouts New York hasn't had a big annual game in its own confines. Whenever New York wants to see a football game it has to go out of town.

Last year the Cornell-Dartmouth game was staged here and it drew a big crowd. It was a money-making proposition for both teams. This year only one game was scheduled for this city—the Cornell-Brown game. It drew about 8,000. That's not a large crowd, but it's a larger crowd than such a game would have drawn in Providence or Ithaca.

The crowd at the Cornell-Brown game would have been around 20,000 had either team been in the top-notch class at the time they played. Both were something on the order of full-enders. Both had been beaten and both had poor records. The fact that 8,000 persons separated themselves from about $15,000 to see these teams battling indicates that a 20,000 crowd, probably a larger one, would turn out for a game between two big eastern eleven and a big western eleven.

The Polo Grounds can accommodate 35,000 people. It's something of a cinch bet that if the Notre-Dame-Dartmouth or a Michigan-Dartmouth game had been staged there early this year the park would have been jammed.

Princeton, Yale and Harvard used to play their big games in New York. That was in the days before either of these universities had big stadiums of their own. The "Big Three" with their new stadiums can accommodate greater crowds, and of course, they will play all their big games in their own stadiums.

But the Polo Grounds can accommodate a larger crowd than can the stadiums at Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Carle, Cornell, Notre Dame and some of the other top notch teams. Therefore it seems to us that the managers of the football teams that represent these colleges might make a master stroke by staging one of their annual games in this town. John B. Foster, secretary of the New York Giants, which owns the Polo Grounds, is attempting to secure two big games as an annual fixture for the Polo Grounds—one for October and one for an early date in November. If he gets them it will work out in a double advantage: It will give New York football enthusiasts a chance to see two real football games each year, and it will mean bigger receipts for the colleges involved than they could get by playing against the same foes in their own ballparks.

An agitation has been started for a renewal of football activities at Columbia College. Those who favor the re-introduction of football at the college point out that the main objection that the Columbia faculty had concerning the game now is removed. The Columbia authorities barred the game eight or nine years ago because of the many deaths and serious injuries that occurred on the football field during the period.

The new style game, it is pointed out now to the faculty, has removed much of the danger of football.

Columbia has a student enrollment of about 5,000 and from among this collection of youths it could mobilize enough footballers to give the best teams in the country an annual battle for the honors.

RAILROAD NOTES

The motor car fire patrol from the several stations of the Portland division, Boston and Maine railroad have been discontinued for the season.

The recent approval of the public service commission of a six-cent fare on the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway, will, it is expected, increase gross revenue of the company by about $75,000 a year.

Thomas M. Reynolds of Boston has brought suit against the Boston and Maine Railroad Company for $75,000, the purpose of the action being to recover the amount on notes of the company held by Mr. Reynolds, which were not paid at the time they came due. An attachment for $75,000 was placed on the property of the company yesterday by Mr. Reynolds' counsel.

TRILLING DIES OF WOUNDS.—SEARCH FOR SLAYERS KEPT UP

After almost six weeks of interminable suffering, weary weeks of painful days and sleepless nights, Samuel J. Trilling, the popular young jewelry salesman, victim of the tragedy at Merrill beach, Massachusetts, died Monday at the Sacred Heart hospital, Manchester.

From the first it was realized that there was little hope of saving the young man. The past three weeks have been weeks of despairing effort on the part of Dr. M. E. Kean and the hospital authorities, and two or three days ago it became evident that it was only a matter of time before Trilling would pass away.

In the meantime the hunt for his assailant, Gerald C. W. Rickard, and the accessory, Gerald St. John Taylor, has been prosecuted unrelentingly. It is stated upon the very best authority that when the network of the law is finally drawn in the public will feel that a debt of gratitude is due County Solicitor E. L. Gupthill and Sheriff Ceylon Spinnay of Rockingham county for the very capable consistent and energetic manner in which they set out to get Rickard and Taylor.

Ernest L. Gupthill, Rockingham county solicitor was very frank in his statements concerning the Trilling case.

"Do you expect to get the two men?" he was asked, "or is it understood that the authorities are theoretically supposed never to lose hope of arresting a wanted person, but, owing to the great interest taken in the Trilling case in Manchester, is there anything in the way of an encouraging statement that you could make at this time?"

"Yes," said Mr. Gupthill, bluntly, "there is. I have every hope of being able to bring this man before the court soon."

"At the present time both Rickard and Taylor are under indictment for assault with intent to kill," further questioned the reporter. "Now that Trilling is dead, what is to be done?"

"I shall issue warrants for both Rickard and Taylor, charging them with murder, Taylor as an accessory. The information necessary will be sent out, and I think that before long we shall have some definite news for you."

"Do you think they have left the country?"

"No," said Mr. Gupthill, "we are of the mind that neither of them did."

Attorney General Tuttle was recently in conference with Solicitor Gupthill and Sheriff Spinnay, and expressed his satisfaction with the plans that had been laid for the capture of the wanted men and also complimented Sheriff Spinnay and the solicitor upon the vigorous manner in which they had run down every clue.

"My opinion of Rickard," said Mr. Gupthill, this morning, "is that he is a bungler."

GERMANS LOSING GROUND ON COAST

Paris, Nov. 2.—Despite all efforts on the part of the Germans, who are making a most determined resistance, especially between Dixmude and the Yser, the allies are continuing their enveloping movement and are driving the enemy before them.

The official communique this afternoon emphasizes this fact. It stated that the Germans in the north were continuing attacks of a most violent character, but that they had failed to check the allied columns.

The German attack on Arras is declared to have failed and the French are making progress at several points in the vicinity. The German artillery bombardment continues in the regions of Rheims, the Argonne and the heights of the Meuse, but it is characterized as generally ineffective.

German Defeat at Ypres

German assaults made last night in another desperate attempt to take Ypres were repulsed with heavy losses according to official reports reaching military headquarters today. The on-the-German offensive, while vigorous in nature, has been a failure in fact, as capturing positions of strategic importance is concerned. The allies have extended their lines along the coast through Neuport and Westende to Middelkerke, toward Marckskerke, where the Germans' main "coast line" remains.

Severe fighting is still reported between Lathasse and Lille, and between Lathasse and Arras, but despite the fact that the Germans have been strongly re-entrained, it is declared here they have been unable to make any material gains.

The fighting all along the line to the north is of the most mixed. The cutting of the dykes has flooded the low lands, and this has interfered with the German progress. The heavy artillery of the allies has been maintained along the railroad embankments, behind the railway tracks and in all of the villages that command the main highways, the only means of approach now that the flatlands are under water.

Despite the conservative nature of all of the official bulletins, the feeling of optimism among the officers of the army of the defense of Paris continues to grow. It is felt here that the German attempt on the coast has been definitely repulsed and that their severe fighting now so much in evidence, is intended to hold present positions, not to gain any new ones. Wherever there have been gains, it is pointed out here, the Germans have been unable to take any advantage of them because the allied armies have in turn pushed their own lines forward so that the new German positions have been flanked.

Declarers: Germans Have Finally Evacuated Lille.

London Nov. 2.—The correspondent of the Times in northern France telegraphs that the allies have penetrated to the north and east of Lille which, he says, "certainly has been evacuated by the Germans and there is good reason to believe that it has been occupied by the allies."

The correspondent of the Daily Mail in northeastern France, telegraphing under date of Saturday, relates how a force of 10,000 Germans was completely routed and scattered by an armored train. He says:

"The Germans had almost surrounded a British regiment, which fought on doggedly, though so vastly outnumbered. Suddenly an armored train shot up the railway line which the Britishers were holding. Right and left the train poured broadsides of machine gun fire, mowing down the Germans at every yard, until the line on each side was covered with heaps of German dead. The rest fled precipitately and the British pursued."

Three thousand Germans left Ostend for Zebrugge Friday, and the reports persist that the Germans have left Ostend.

It is stated that the allies have intercepted a message from Emperor William to the King of Wurttemberg, telling him it was absolutely imperative to capture Ypres before Nov. 1, otherwise it will be necessary for the Germans to withdraw behind the Rhine.

The skillful German Gen. von Meyer was killed at Dixmude Friday.

A Ridiculous Exhibition.

There was a painful exhibition of silliness in the Mississippi supreme court a few days ago when the justices of the court and the lawyers presenting cases appeared in cotton shirts and overalls. It was "cotton day" in Mississippi, a day on which all the people of the state were asked to make fools of themselves by wearing cotton clothing for the purpose of stimulating the sale of cotton.

A great many foolish things have been said and done in behalf of the cotton planters since their market was paralyzed by the war, and for the people of a great state to engage in such childish work as the attempt to help the cotton market by wearing cotton clothes for one day was bad enough, but this exhibition by the supreme court of the state capped the climax and showed to what lengths of folly people can be carried by that hysteria which manifests itself so frequently in the life of today.

Men of the sense and judgment of supreme court justices and lawyers whose business takes them before the supreme court do not need to be told that holding a session of the court clad in overalls and cotton shirts could do nothing whatever toward helping the sale of cotton, except in a very limited way through the purchase of these garments for the occasion. It was a glaring piece of tomfoolery from start to finish, and the people of the country read with surprise that so dignified a body as a state supreme court had descended to such a childish level, even for one day.

But perhaps there is not so much occasion for surprise, after all. One of the disturbing signs of the times is the tendency toward emotional outbreaks and hysteria. Somebody says the word and everybody wears cotton for one day or buys a barrel of apples, for be it remembered that a New England city recently held an "apple day" with the idea of encouraging the purchase of apples. As if people could not be trusted to buy what they want to eat and select their clothing according to their means and taste without the stimulus of concerted action and empty hurrah.

There is too much of this sort of thing, too much hurrahing for something one day and forgetting it the next. More soberness and the exercise of sound sense which were characteristic of other days would be better for the country and better comport with a dignity which seems to be on a gradual, if not rapid, decline.

When the war broke out there was a great deal of worry in this country over the interference with exportation, and in spite of bounding prices it was feared the country would be gorged with goods that could not be shipped out. Today the warring nations are buying heavily here and the exportation of food stuffs is increasing rapidly, together with clothing and other necessities. Under these circumstances there is no reason why cotton should not begin to move in due time.

The census bureau announces that pauperism in this country is decreasing. There are many reasons why it should, and perhaps one is that pauperism has become unfashionable and that people dependent upon public charity today prefer to take their assistance in the form of "out-door relief," so called, which keeps them from going to the poorhouse and becoming real "paupers."

Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian author, would be very unsuccessful in American politics unless he changed his tactics. When suggested recently for election to the French Academy he stepped aside in favor of a Belgian poet whom he considered more worthy of the honor. But authorship, poetry and politics are quite different things.

While Congress has run home to look after its political fences and enjoy a much desired vacation, the president will remain "on the job" and keep in close touch with affairs in Mexico and Europe. In other words, the policy of "watchful waiting" is still in force, though Mr. Wilson will take time to go to Princeton to vote.

Russia, considered one of the most backward of civilized nations, is leading the world in prohibition. The sale of vodka, the national beverage, has been stopped and Warsaw is not now allowed to sell wine or spirits of any kind. Under such conditions it must be that "order reigns in Warsaw."

The commission appointed by the treasury department has fixed a standard for the water served by transportation companies to their patrons. The traveling public is painfully aware that there is room in most cases for vast improvement.

In the rush to aid the poor and suffering of Europe the fact should not be overlooked that there is still some poverty and suffering at home.

The way to vote right is to hear all the evidence and weigh it carefully, then use your own judgment.

The great American jury will disagree at many points, but a verdict rendered at the polls just the same.

"THINKING IN WORLD TERMS"

An Anonymous Little Book, "The Great Analysis," With Its Broad Philosophy of World-Order; With Some Comments.

By JUSTIN HENRY SHAW.

The "Clean Slate."

Let the author explain what he means by this: "That is what the organizing intelligence of the country would start from in its work of reconstruction. I am conscious that in the speculations I have now and then suffered my own prejudices to anticipate, by implication, the reconstructive work. I have spoken as if the state would not be clean, but inscribed with certain foreign ideas and principles. This has been, I believe, inevitable; but it has in some degree obscured the true purpose of my argument. Let me, then, repeat and insist that I do not set up for a sociological prophet, and do not take my stand on the plausibility of any detail in my forecast."

"What I have sought to do is simply to stimulate the reader's imagination of a segregated community, limited in size, provided with all the mental resources, and most of the mental equipment, of modern science, and uprooted by a great convulsion, not only from its geographical environment, but from all sorts of prejudices, traditions, and habitual forms of thought. I beg the reader to conceive such a community recovering from its first bewilderment and disarray, and settling down, on the assumption, as nearly as possible, of the 'clean slate,' and to the re-ordering of its polity. What might we reasonably expect in the process of that re-ordering?"

I anticipate it will occur to many persons that a very large portion of the world has suffered and is still afflicted with a greater actual calamity than that of having been separated from the remainder of humanity, as supposed by the hypothesis of this little book. It will likely occur that if these belongings might be cast off into safe spaces by some such sort of planetary action, each and all would be benefited by the convulsion. The absence of a sense of world-ordering, and the necessity of the elimination of war, must be the first obvious conclusion. Even a vague general desire for such a world-order, without a single constitutional change, might have prevented the destructive wickedness which is now the shame of the world.

It may be a part of the re-adjustment, when the actual world shall have recovered from its real bewilderment and disarray, of starting out with some new "clean slate," from which shall be erased "all sorts of prejudices, traditions, and habitual forms of thought."

The Practical Terms.

"Is it possible to think in world-terms?" The author warns that "before attempting to answer this question, it may be well to guard against a misunderstanding. In the illustration in little, I have supposed immediate and pretty rapid action to follow the theoretic analysis of the organizing body; but I do not for a moment mean to imply that the establishment of an ordered world-state would immediately or very quickly follow the Great Analysis, and the theoretic forecast of a world-order. No amount of talking-thought will make the planet other than unwieldy and hard to manipulate. Even with modern methods of diffusion, thought-waves spread but slowly; and action lags still farther behind. I am far from suggesting that the most Titanic intellect could, in a decade or a generation, remake world-polity."

"The effect of the Great Analysis would not be revolutionary. But it would enable statesmen and nations to look ahead, instead of groping along in the tangle of affairs. It would teach them to think in terms of centuries, instead of, at most, in terms of one or two decades."

"Let us first recognize that it is only a difference of scale, not any difference of essence, that distinguishes the real from the imaginary problem. The earth is just as we have conceived our rutinary Yorkshire to be: an isolated pendant in space."

"But is there no hope that we may ever reach out and grapple with this immensity?"

Race, Language and Religion.

A review of the detailed consideration of race may be brief. The author observes that there are, at the present time, two diametrically opposed schools of thought—one holding that race is the fundamental fact of life; the other regarding it as a superstition and a bogey. It may be either.

But the best definition of the human family, as a biological and moral fact, is that by our own beloved Bostonian, Dr. Charles F. Merriam, in his "American Aspirations," with its spirit of the times, for us. It is this: "America is really the human race—since all of the elements of all the earth are gathered here. In a new sense, then, it is true for us that 'our countrymen are all mankind.' America is actually not a nationalistic, but, on account of the vast variety of its component elements, a human country—the first really human civilization of recorded history." One should with gratitude be proud of the man who said that, and rejoice in the spirit that prompted it.

One must regard the race question, as settled, in this broader view of mankind. "America for Americans, and America for the World," in the light of this attitude toward the world, is one of the grandest thoughts that has ever been uttered. The problems of language, customs and other differences are petty and secondary to this first realization! Happily for us, and we hope for the world, this view seems true.

"Race and language are imposed from without, as parts of the inevitable order of things," says our unknown author. "We have no more control over our race than over our anatomical structure; and the growth and decay of a language is a natural process, like the growth and decay of a tree, which may, indeed, be retarded or otherwise modified, but only within narrow limits. "Religion, on the other hand, though it springs from a psychological need that manifests itself very early in the ascent of man, is neither a vital function, like digestion, nor a necessity of existence, like food and air. It is a product of the relation between the human mind and its environment—a very common product, indeed, yet neither universal nor inevitable. . . . We cannot choose our race any more than we can choose the color of our hair, but we can choose our religion, like the style of our hair dressing, though the vast majority, in both matters, simply follow the fashion of their country and time."

The Religious Factors.

Considerable has been said in this book of the part that religion plays in world-affairs. This has been due apparently to the persistent claims of the various religious bodies, and in the light of present events, what is said is of added interest.

"A census of religions—and still more a quantitative estimate of the spheres of influence of the various creeds in recorded and unrecorded time—puts all the religions to shame, in so far as they assert exclusive validity and aspire to universal empire. In relation to the whole past of humanity, since man first stood erect beneath the sun, what proud and most ancient communion does not dwindle to a local cult and a growth of yesterday? Just in so far as a religion professes to trace its origin and its right of rule to a definite revelation vouchsafed in time and place—just in so far as it stands non-suited in the courts of history and anthropology."

"A religion (if such there be) which professes to have grown slowly into the clear air out of the mists of ignorance and error, and to be ever correcting its interpretation of the universe in the light of fuller knowledge: such a religion may be mistaken, but at least does not stultify its own assumptions."

"How different is the case of a creed which purports to have fallen from heaven in such-and-such-a year, after countless generations of men had lived and died in ignorance of it; which is so obscure that feuds over its interpretation stain the centuries with blood; and which, after all, obtains but a precarious hold (in various mutually antagonistic forms) over a minority of the race whose eternal salvation is said to be dependent on it. Did ever such arrogant promises lead to such a pitiful conclusion?"

"All the historic religions, in fact, have become shocking misfits. They were cut for people who wholly misconceived their situation, both in space and time. . . . They were strictly conditioned by the common knowledge, which meant the common ignorance of their day. In other words, they were more or less fitted to diverse rudimentary stages in the growth of the human spirit; and the adult human spirit of today keeps trying to force itself into the same childish garments."

"It would be among the first tasks of the Great Analysis to take the measurements, so to speak, of the various religions, and present them in something like their just proportions to each other and to humanity at large. Out of such a presentation there could not but grow, however slowly, a conviction of the hopelessness of all aspiration to world-empire on the part of any of the historic creeds."

"Such 'atheistic,' indeed, might come in the train of a military tyranny, not otherwise. . . . At any rate, if God be enthroned, it will be under none of the names he has borne in history."

National Thinking.

There is an unexpected force in the comments on old-world internationalism. "Statesmen may, perhaps, think a few years or a few decades ahead; but their schemes are inspired by sheer national egoism and ambition, expressing itself in high-sounding ready-made phrases, the true import of which they have never sought to penetrate. To call this egoism 'national' is, indeed, to flatter it. In nine cases out of ten, it is essentially class-egoism or party-egoism, which has given no real thought—though it may pay perfunctory and hypocritical lip-homage, to the good of the nation as a whole."

"It is appalling to picture the condition of the minds—the fifteen or twenty brains, under as many helmets or shakos or ministerial cocked hats—in which the immediate destinies of Europe are at the present moment shaping themselves. Some of these men, no doubt, are thoroughly well-meaning, and sincerely bent on doing us little harm as possible. But is there one to whom we can look with the faintest gleam of hope for a world-shaping, world-redeeming thought? Is there one who has shewn any sense of the new conditions of planetary life, the vast new issues opening out before the human race?"

"Is there one whom we can believe to have thought out, sincerely and completely, the meaning of the phrases on which his foreign policy is based? Is there one from whom we could expect an original and enlightened view of his own country's interest, let alone any wider outlook? Is there one, to sum up, who has given proof of a mental calibre at all commensurate with his power and his responsibility? If such an one there be, he is certainly not among the active, aggressive 'makers of history' but among the comparatively passive groups whose part it is to look on and try to prevent the worst sort of mischief."

The author concludes: "We must not, however, be too hard on our purblind principalities and powers. It is not their fault that they have been born into a world too vast and complex for their rational apprehension. It is just here that the Great Analysis must come to the rescue; and the very point of my argument is that it must be a huge co-operative effort, even if it be organized by one supreme intelligence. It would be fantastic to look for that intelligence among the Crowned Heads of Europe."

"But even 'the worst sort of mischief' has not been prevented. It is at least one of the results of thinking in national terms; or is it even that?"

Life, and Social Conditions.

"The true question—the question the Great Analysis would have to answer—is: What population can this globe of ours sustain in health, in comfort, in seamliness, in dignity, in beauty, even (on fitting occasions) in splendor and magnificence? How can the planetary resources be developed and distributed so that the highest quality of life may be attained that is compatible with the finest quality of which the individual is capable? It is not a question of dividing so and so much money; but of rearranging the mechanism of production and distribution in the light of an exhaustive study of the whole data of the case."

"As for the avoidance of the word 'Socialism,' it has, for the most part, been instinctive, not deliberate. Once or twice, perhaps, the word may have come into my mind and been consciously rejected; but not more than once or twice. It needs no conscious resolve to steer clear of a word which does not mean the same thing to any two people who use it, and which comes to many minds charged with exasperating, terrifying, even maddening connotations. If the tendency of my thought seems socialistic, I would ask the reader to bear in mind two things:

"First, in a discussion such as this, one must illustrate one's meaning by examples; and what is intended merely as an illustration is apt to assume the appearance of a prophecy. . . . I have tried to indicate the order of results to be looked for, not to prophesy the results themselves. But, in the second place, it must be owned that any aspiration toward a world-order cannot but seem socialistic in tendency; for it involves the subordination of the unit—whether man, or family, or tribe, or race—to the welfare of the whole. Or, rather it involves the seeking of the welfare of one in the welfare of all. It involves the idea that no human soul can truly and permanently flourish at the expense of another human soul."

"The opposite idea—that one man's happiness is necessarily founded on another's misery, his gain on another's loss, his life on another's death—is clearly the negation of a world-order. For it would be mere playing with words to apply the term 'order' to a state of eternal and inevitable strife."

CURRENT OPINION

Army and Navy Go On, Unchanged, Trustees of Military Spirit of Our Fathers.

The conservative influence of a highly trained army and navy gives a country a stability that no other means can give. Political parties come and go, theories of government have their ephemeral vogue, standards of conduct change, great families rise and wane, wealth accumulates and dissipates and individuals strut their brief hours of triumph on the stage.

BUT THE ARMY AND NAVY GO ON, ESSENTIALLY UNCHANGED, FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION, THE ONLY LIFE-LONG REPRESENTATIVE OF A COUNTRY AS A WHOLE, THE ACTUAL FORCE THAT HELD—AND STILL HOLDS—THE SEPARATE STATES TOGETHER, THE ENDURING TIE THAT UNITES THEM AS A NATION AND THE TRUSTEES OF THE MILITARY SPIRIT OF OUR FATHERS THAT MADE THE NATION STRONG.

To keep alive the spirit of our fathers amid the harsh realities of war and the soft forgetfulness of peace is the paramount duty laid upon us. To do this duty well must be our ceaseless and supreme endeavor; to the end that we may pass along the sacred fire received from Washington and Grant and Sherman and Jones and Farragut; to the end that we may be a safeguard to the United States of America, a security to every ship with friendly mission that shall sail upon the sea.—By Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N.

This book from its reference to militarism: "Even the militarists—the men who believe, with Moltke, that universal peace is a dream, and not a pleasant dream—are not as happy as they might be. They find comfort, indeed, in the belief that a great Armageddon must precede any sort of world-order; but behind it they cannot quite imagine the nations piling up forever the gigantic costly implements of modern warfare, and periodically letting them loose, like avalanches, over each other's territories. Human folly, in fact, is become so Titanic as to appall even the human fool. He does not know what is to come of it all."

"In one form or another, a world-order must one day arrive. It may come as a benefaction, or it may come as a calamity; and the best way to avert the latter alternative is assuredly to study, from a planetary point of view, the conditions and potentialities of life for the crew of sentient creatures who have somehow been marooned on this island in space."

"The human intellect, organizing order-bringing, must enlarge itself so as to embrace, in one great prospectus, the problems, not of a parish, or of a nation, but of the pendent globe."

Turkey has at last openly joined issue with Germany and Austria against Russia, and the Pandora's box of world troubles seems to have barely little left to spring on the universe. It has long seemed a foregone conclusion that the Turks would jump at Russia with the ultimate hope of regaining much of the territory in Europe that they lost during the Balkan war. These pictures show types of Turkish infantry and naval gunners.

SUFFRAGE ELECTION

Expected That Votes for Women Will Become a National Issue.

New York, Nov. 3.—The following statement has been made by the National American Woman Suffrage Association:

In Ohio, Nebraska, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, North and South Dakota, woman suffrage amendments will be submitted to the voters Tuesday. Victory in these states will mean 67 more electoral votes cast in states in which women have the franchise on equal terms with men. Winning Ohio will be politically and psychologically the most important gain the suffrage movement has made, because Ohio is entitled to 24 electoral votes. In the nine states having equal suffrage at present, and Illinois, which has given partial suffrage to women, including the presidential franchise, the total electoral vote is 34. Should a majority of the 7 campaign states go for suffrage on November 3, votes for women will, it is expected, become a political question of national importance.

TODAY'S ELECTION

Thirty-Four United States Senators Will Be Chosen.

Thirty-four United States Senators, 435 members of the House of Representatives, several Governors of States, and many minor officials are being elected today.

The nation-wide election today tests: 1. Whether the popularity of President Wilson is the reliable issue which the Democrats have assumed it to be.

2. Whether the Democratic administration can profit by the tariff, currency, anti-trust and Trade Commission laws.

3. Whether the Republicans can show that the change in the tariff has been a great factor in necessitating special war revenue and has made the bad situation created by the European war worse.

4. Whether the Democrats will retain their present overwhelming majority in the House of Representatives.

5. Whether the Progressive party is holding its own or is rapidly vanishing.

6. Whether the recent Constitutional amendment enacting the direct vote of United States Senators is a success.

These are the outstanding features of national interest.

Prohibition is a great issue in several states and some prohibition candidates may be elected to Congress.

The elections today, however, are remarkable for the way national and even international issues are dominating State issues.

The Democrats everywhere have made their campaign on the record of President Wilson and the achievements of his administration. And, relying on these, the candidates in many states have made a Wilson endorsement their chief claim to popular recognition.

The Democratic orators have declared that the European war creates a grave crisis and that patriotic Americans should uphold the president and his administration in this critical time by electing Democrats everywhere.

The Republicans in meeting this issue of Wilson have attempted to prove that the Democratic administration has been extravagant, that the new tariff is a disappointment, that the Democratic administration has produced hard times before the outbreak of the great war, and that if the Republicans had been in power the war would not have made it necessary to lay new taxes as has been the case.

There has been little venom in the discussion of national issues; first, because the public has not read the published news as enthusiastically as usual, on account of the prominence of war news; and second, because the Republicans have carefully avoided making personal attacks on the President.

The Republicans are basing their hopes on the expected complete collapse of the Progressive party. Their leaders find comfort in the recent Maine election, which showed a Bull Moose vote only 65 per cent as large as in 1912. With that percentage as the basis of their calculations they compute they will win back 54 of the old Republican districts in the coming elections. This calculation takes it for granted, however, that practically all the Bull Moose's will return to the Republican fold. As a matter of fact perhaps only three out of four will do so. On the other hand some Republicans believe the Bull Moose slump will be greater than 65 per cent—perhaps as much as 80 per cent.

The weakness of the Progressives in many districts is so great that they are not running candidates.

Although most Republican leaders admit that the Democrats have an extremely strong issue in the personality and record of the President, their majority of over 145 in the House of Representatives is quite certain to decrease by this election. Estimates of their new majority by fairly unprejudiced canvassers indicate it cannot be less than 95 and will probably be between 95 and 105. This will give the administration control, but undoubtedly not such easy control as has been the case this year.

Besides the confusing local issues of prohibition and religion in the middle and far West, there is in Illinois the personal issue of Roger Sullivan, the Democratic boss, which is bound to be reflected in the votes for members of Congress. In New York state the Congress elections have been neglected for the gubernatorial and Senatorial contests. In many states the apathy due to the interest in the European war is so extreme that the spellbinders have found it difficult to get audiences together. Undoubtedly in these states the vote today will be very light.

As a result of today's election the Progressive contingent in Congress will probably be cut down from 18 to 7. It looks likely that "Uncle Joe" Cannon and William D. McKinley, two old Republican war horses, will be returned again from Illinois after "fame duck" experiences.

FOURTH AMERICAN ROAD CONGRESS

"Not until all supervisory road officials are appointed in accordance with the recognized principles of the merit system will America be sure of an adequate road system," says Richard Henry Dana, President of the National Civil Service Reform League. Mr. Dana calls attention to the fact that from 100,000 to 150,000 road officials now have supervision of the annual expenditure of well over $200,000,000 for road purposes in the United States. With comparatively few exceptions these men are chosen without regard to their special fitness for the work and largely on account of their political affiliations. A session devoted exclusively to the merit system in road administration will be held under the auspices of the National Civil Service Reform League at the Fourth American Road Congress which will be held at Atlanta, Georgia, during the week of Nov. 9. At this session an earnest effort will be made to line up all the powerful influences represented at the Congress in support of the movement

SCORES SUCCESS IN SONG RECITAL

Miss Beatrice E. Hartford on Monday evening made her initial appearance in song recital before a large and appreciative audience at Association Hall, and she secured a distinct success, and the musical circles gave her a warm welcome.

Miss Hartford has a very pleasing soprano voice, that has a wonderful carrying power and a good range. She has been studying voice culture at the New England Conservatory of Music for the past three years, where she has been the pupil of F. Morse Wemple, and has made rapid strides, and last evening was the first opportunity her friends here have had the pleasure of hearing her in a recital.

Her program was well suited to test the range of her voice and she sang every number with a grace and expression that delighted her audience.

Miss Hartford was assisted by Mr. Lee Pattison pianist and Miss Florence Marshall accompanist.

The others were Misses Emily Tilton, Elanora Fisher, Marie Philbrick, Jessie Madanala, Mildred Gove, Mary Griffin and Gladys Patten.

Miss Hartford was given a warm reception in her opening number, "Kismet" and she responded with "Because of You" and "Morning," three very charming selections.

For her second she rendered Schindler's difficult number, "La Colombe," finely and followed with "Toot's La Serenata" and "Ardor's Path," and in these numbers she had to respond to an encore. She closed with three very charming selections and her concluding number, "April Morn" was ovated altogether so soon for her audience.

Miss Hartford was accompanied by Miss Florence Marshall in her usual skillful manner and she received many bouquets of roses during the evening.

Mr. Lee Pattison, the pianist, is one of the cleverest artists that has been heard here for years. He plays with remarkable technique and expression and plainly shows the years of study under the best of teachers. All of his numbers were well received and heartily enjoyed.

In all it was a delightful evening of music. The program:

RAILROAD NOTES

Charles D. Stone, who died recently in South Berwick was one of the oldest employees of the Boston and Maine, when he retired with a pension. When 14 Mr. Stone entered the employ of the Boston and Maine railroad as fireman, after which he followed as passenger brakeman and then conductor. In the late 60's he was employed as engineer on the Alton, Toledo and Santa Fe railroad, returning to the Boston and Maine as engineer later. He was promoted to station agent at Lawrence, Mass., a position which he held for 20 years.

The large billho mixer which is being used by Warren Brothers, the firm in charge of the work of rebuilding Islington street, is an object of great curiosity to the residents of that vicinity.

The large mixer is a railroad car in itself and is hauled by freight engines from place to place. It towers above the box freight cars, and 20 men can easily work on the mixer at one time. Besides inspectors, the contracting firm has an expert chemist who tests the mixture every few minutes.

RUSSIAN FORTS DAMAGE GERMAN SHIPS

Patrograd, Nov. 2.—A dispatch from Sebastopol says that the German cruiser Goeben's bombardment of that Black Sea port was put to an end by the Constantinian batteries, which forced the warship to withdraw.

The shore station subsequently intercepted a wireless telegraphy message from the Goeben, which said: "Damaged; will return to Constantinople for repairs."

It is believed here that Turkey will concentrate her efforts against England in Egypt. A holy war is expected to be proclaimed by the Sultan, but there is a general feeling here that it will meet with little sympathy from the Mohammedans of Egypt or India.

The chances against success attending a holy war proclamation by the Sultan and the danger of complications in Tripoli affecting the present military balance against German interests suggest that the Germans are not counting primarily on help of this kind.

These factors in the situation indicate that if German influence at Constantinople continues to be paramount the main Turkish strength will be used against Russia. Above everything else Germany now needs Turkey's help to prevent the Slavs overrunning German territory.

Russia is well satisfied with the prospect of war with Turkey. Balked for years of an open outlet for her commerce through the Black sea, she will now be able to take it with the consent of the powers who, in the past have opposed her.

Definite assurances have again been received from Bulgaria that she intends remaining neutral. It is of course possible that later she will enter the war, but for the present at least her near-bankruptcy promises to keep her hands tied.

Although the Turkish ambassador has been handed his passports and the representatives of the allied powers have all left Turkey, Russia has up to the present taken no aggressive step against the Turks.

The newspapers report that the cruisers Goeben and Breslau and four Turkish torpedo boats bombarded the shore near Sebastopol Friday morning shelling the railroad and docks. The Russian shore batteries replied. The warships disappeared along the Crimean shore to the eastward after inflicting considerable damage.

Theodosia, on the Crimean coast, 100 miles northeast of Sebastopol, also suffered a bombardment on Saturday when a Turkish cruiser sailed close enough to throw 30 shells into the city.

News has been received at the foreign office that the Russian ambassador has left Constantinople but the Turkish minister here has not yet received his passports or instructions from Constantinople.

Britain Hands Turkish Ambassador His Passports

London, Nov. 2.—The Turkish ambassador to Great Britain, Tewfik Pasha, was handed his passports today.

The Turkish ambassador this morning visited the foreign office to say goodbye to the foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey. He will depart for home tomorrow.

Report 8 Turkish Corps Have Crossed Egypt Border.

London, Nov. 2.—The Turkish situation demanded the attention of high officials today. Communication with Constantinople ceased immediately following the departure from the capital of the ambassadors of Britain, France and Russia. It is reported, however, that Turkey has detained all of the Russian consular representatives as hostages for the Turkish representatives now in Russia. The belief is expressed that they will shortly be released, as Petrograd advises say the Turkish ambassador to Russia, his staff and the various Turkish consuls have started for home.

The reports persist that eight army corps of Turkish troops have already crossed the Egyptian frontier. This official press bureau, however, while permitting publication of the report has no confirmation.

A rigid censorship is in effect on news from the east. This is believed to be due to plans on the part of the Franco-British fleet to attack the forts of the Dardanelles. Reports reaching here from Italian sources indicate that the several battleships, battle cruisers and armored cruisers of the fleets which have been bombarding Gallipoli, at the mouth of the Adriatic, steamed away from there Saturday in an easterly direction. It is believed they have proceeded to the naval base tendered at the outbreak of the war by Greece, from which point they will be within striking distance of the Dardanelles.

Suez Canal Closely Guarded

The assertion is made here that the Turks can do little damage in an invasion of Egypt. Earl Kitchener has taken every precaution. He has been convinced from the outset of the war that Germany would involve Turkey, and his taken measures accordingly. There is not a foot of the Suez canal which is not closely guarded by British troops. Every stranger who has landed in Egypt since the inception of the war has been subject to the most exact espionage. Austrian and German steamers and sailing craft have been taken as prizes of war. It is further insisted here that even though the Sultan carries out his threat, as recorded via Berlin, and declares a holy war, the Egyptian troops will remain loyal. The separation between church and state as far as the Mohammedans are concerned, has been greatly emphasized in the last few years and the Sultan's edicts are no longer accepted without question.

It is reported here that a new Turkish cabinet is being formed, which will be made up entirely of Young Turks, and which will eliminate the few ministers who have opposed war.

After they will remain at his post as war minister, but the new cabinet will be picked by Gen. Lemay von Sanders the German dictator, who is now running everything Turkish. It was due entirely to Von Sanders' influence that Turkey was lined up on the side of the Germans.

A Rome dispatch to the Central News asserts that Turkish gunboats are reported at the entrance to the gulf of Suez. Numerous detachments of Turkish cavalry, according to the same dispatch, have reached Akabah, a fortified village of Arabia, on the Gulf of the same name.

Hostile Nations Striving to Gain Roumania's Aid

Bucharest, Roumania, Nov. 2.—Bucharest was today the centre of the diplomatic negotiations on which hangs the attitude of the Balkan powers toward the European war. Representatives of the allies and also of Germany and Austria are moving every wheel in the effort to gain the support of the Balkan states.

The allies are being assisted by the Greek diplomats. The latter are doing their best to persuade Servia to turn Servian Macedonia back to Bulgaria as a reward for participating in the war on the side of the allies. In return they promise that Servia will be permitted to annex Bosnia should the war result in favor of the allies.

SMOKE TALK AT WARD THREE.

The Democrats of ward three had a smoke talk at the ward room on Monday evening, and politics was put in between the different courses of the menu that was served.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated By Portsmouth People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one kidney medicine that has earned a reputation for lasting results and there is plenty of proof of its merit right here in Portsmouth.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now makes his testimony even stronger.

Mrs. Arthur M. Morrison, 89, Cambridge St., Portsmouth, says: "I had pains in my back and sides. My kidneys were weak and often I had nervous and dizzy spells. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and used same. It wasn't long before they completely cured me. The cure has been permanent. You may continue publishing the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills before."

"Said conspirators," reads the indictment, "were to induce and compel such sales of capital stock, such leasing of properties and facilities and such making of contracts and working arrangements, and such engaging in combination by using and threatening to use the advantage possessed by said New Haven Company and the accumulation of power arising from the control of some of the said other common carriers, to grasp the commerce rightfully and normally belonging to said other and remaining common carriers out of such commerce, except as they might engage in it in combination with and subordination to said New Haven Company."

The commerce which it is alleged was monopolized by the defendants, consisted of water, steam and electric is unanimous that caffeine and tannin, the poisonous drugs in tea and coffee, should not be used unless as medicines under the directions of a doctor.

These drugs in tea and coffee are known to be one of the common causes of chronic headache, nervousness, dyspepsia, "coffee heart," and other aches and ills.

If you are troubled with any such ailments, suppose you do as thousands of others have done, get relief by quitting both tea and coffee and using

The conspiracy is alleged to have extended from July 2, 1890, the day the Sherman Antitrust act became a law, until "the day of the finding and presentation of this indictment."

"The means and methods," continues the indictment, "which said conspirators were to use in so bringing said other common carriers, besides said New Haven Company, under their influence, management, domination and ownership for the purposes aforesaid, were the means and methods involving certain unfair, undue, unreasonable and unlawful practices and practices of a kind to include others from carrying on and attempting to carry on said commerce."

PREDICT REPUBLICAN VICTORY

It is all over but the casting and counting of the ballots, and after a rather strenuous campaign the state election is here for the voters to decide the issue, and with a continuance of the present excellent weather a big vote may be looked for.

While both sides are making the usual before election boasts, the situation from an unbiased view point, is decidedly Republican. It is predicted that the Republicans will be placed back in power in this state by a good majority, electing Roland Spaulding Governor, giving him a cabinet of Republicans, a Republican Senate and House. The Progressive vote, which two years ago put the Democrats in power, is this year a negative quantity for practically all have gone back into the Republican party.

Senator Gallinger will be returned to the Senate and by a good majority, part of which will be rolled up from this city.

The Congressional fight in this district is a close one and the Democrats are confident of the re-election of Congressman Reed. The Republicans are just as confident that Mr. Sullivan will come back and carry the district by a big vote.

In the county the election of the entire Republican ticket is conceded.

The outlook for Sherman T. Newton is to be elected in the twenty-fourth senatorial district, and possibly eight out of the nine representatives.

COL. JULIAN ALLEN

Can any of our readers answer the following query from last Saturday's Eastern Transcript?

A recently discovered "Lincoln letter" printed by The Philologist in the Transcript, is as follows:

Hon. Sec. War.

My Dear Sir—Colonel Julian Allen, a Polish gentleman, naturalized, proposes raising a regiment of our citizens of his nationality, to serve in our army. He proposes getting them

ARE YOU FULL OF URIC ACID?

Health Insurance for Meat Eaters

A well known authority states that the blood of every meat eater in America is filled with uric acid, the greatest foe to the kidneys.

The kidneys fight uric acid, something they were never meant to do. The result is they become weak from overwork. They get sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

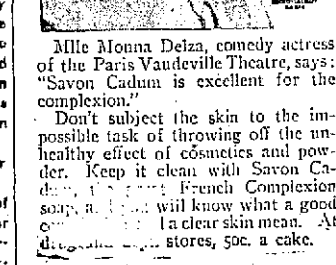

Let kidney trouble develop and it will lead to such fatal diseases as Dropsy and Bright's Disease.

Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness and bladder disorders come from weak, sluggish kidneys. You can help the weakened kidneys and put them in good working order again by getting from your druggist about five ounces of Rheumastol, take two ten-drop spoonfuls in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will perform their duties in a perfect manner.

Rheumastol flushes the clogged kidneys and stimulates them to action. It cleans out the stomach and intestines of all poisonous matter and leaves the intestinal canal clean and sweet.

Rheumastol is very inexpensive. It acts quickly without griping or nausea. Delicious to take—delightfully effective.

Rheumastol is prepared by the famous Rheumastol Company, Minneapolis, Minn.

Mlle. Monna Delza, comedy actress of the Paris Vaudeville Theatre, says: "Savon Cadum is excellent for the complexion."

from the different states, without particular order, as can be most conveniently done, and organizing them here, so that they, as a regiment, shall hail from no particular state. Mr. Allen is highly recommended, as you will see by his testimonials. If he so raises and renders a regiment, it is in favor of accepting it, unless there be some objection which does not occur to me.

Yours truly,
A. Lincoln.

"Colonel Julian Allen, born April 1, 1831, died February 8, 1899" was buried in Proprietors Cemetery, Portsmouth, N. H., as his gravestone there records—he having married Mary Abby, daughter of Andrew Hussey of Portsmouth. Information is now sought as to whether his proposed regiment was actually raised, and if so what was its official designation, and especially whether Allen was in the United States service during the Civil War. In order that his grave, hitherto neglected, may in that case be duly honored hereafter on Memorial Day.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., Nov. 2.—Director John C. Remond of the engineering station is making preparations for a series of county institutes for boys. At these institutes the members of the boys' corn and potato clubs which have been growing crops this last summer will show their produce and display their skill in judging. The institute at that will be held November 12; that at Milford, November 20; that at Pembroke, December 4, and that at Chester December 11. In many cases the program will extend well into the second day.

Professor Fred Rasmussen has just returned from Chicago, where he was elected president of the Official Dairy Instructors Association. This organization, which aims at the advancement of the dairy industry, includes in its membership instructors and investigators to the number of 200 from the various agricultural colleges and experimental stations.

The meeting at Chicago was the ninth annual gathering and was held in conjunction with the National Dairy Show there.

Professor W. C. O'Kane has now issued from the press a bulletin on the apple maggot, which represents four years of work. The publication will be a complete treatise on this insect and will contain a great deal of valuable information which is now published for the first time. The work was begun by Professor C. F. Jackson and assistance has been rendered by C. H. Hudley and Miss Cornelia Kephart.

St. Louis has ninety-nine theatres showing exclusively the Silent Drama. Portland, Oregon, has sixty-one moving picture houses.

New Orleans has seventy-four active moving picture theatres.

Detroit has one hundred and twenty active theatres having the Silent Drama as a drawing card.

Robert Leonard and Ella Hall will be the principals in a new serial by one of the independent companies, following the "Trey O' Hearts." Serials may please the majority of the people, but not so at a theatre where half a dozen different ones are being shown. People lose interest in them and they are unable to follow them up.

Annette Kellerman, the "perfect woman" stars in a seven reel picture "Neptunes Daughter." She is ably assisted by a cast of upwards of a thousand players.

The Famous Players Film Company has produced an elaborate and spectacular film version in four reels, presenting David Haggis in his original role in the famous racing play "His Last Dollar."

The "Straight Road" by the great dramatist, Clyde Fitch, is being filmed by the Famous Players Film Company. "The Crucible," the powerful and world-famous story by Mark Lee Zue-

WOOD ALCOHOL IS NOT A GOOD DRINK

Hirshel, Vt., Nov. 2.—The list of fatalities due to drinking liquor containing wood alcohol was increased by three today, making a total of six deaths in two days. Two other persons were reported to be dangerously ill.

D. A. Hisee, a druggist, who is alleged to have sold the liquor to the victims, was arrested yesterday after the deaths of Edward Wakefield of Warren and Fred O'Brien and Samuel King of this town. Addressed Johnson of Lincoln and Ernest Durey and Wallace Hammer of this town died today and Frank Torrey and L. L. Jones of Philadelphia were reported in a critical condition.

Hisee, the police allege, "stole" a can of wood alcohol for grain alcohol. A quantity of liquor seized at his pharmacy has been sent to the state laboratory for examination. According to the police, Hisee has been fined for illegal sales of liquor at various times within the past two years.

FAIR AND COOLER TONIGHT

Few Scattered Showers Throughout New England, Hartford Having the Most, a 10th of an Inch.

Where were a few scattered showers throughout New England Sunday night, the heaviest fall of rain reported being at Hartford, where a 10th of an inch fell. At most other places there was merely a trace.

The disturbance which hovers over New England is, according to the Government report central over the St. Lawrence valley. The prediction is made that there will be no more rain, with about an equal chance of remaining cloudy or clearing. The temperature remains moderate in all sections except in portions of Canada. The outlook is for colder weather today, with a fall of about 10 degrees, and that on the following day there will be a rise in the temperature. The only stations where freezing weather is reported are along Lake Superior. It was 40 at Greenville, Me., 58 at Nantucket and 52 at Boston.

The forecast is fair Tuesday, with moderate west to northerly wind.

MORE BEEF SHORTAGE

Chicago, Nov. 2.—The Union Stock Yards, the largest cattle market in the world, and the State of Illinois, as well, were quarantined against the shipment of cattle, hogs and sheep on orders from Washington today, according to a statement made by Dr. S. B. Bennett, chief of the local branch of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry at the yards.

This means the practical cessation of the meat packing business at the yards for the time being, said Dr. Bennett.

The Government is making efforts to stamp out the hoof and mouth disease which is epidemic in northern Indiana and southern Michigan.

Phillip Penzel of New Hampshire State College at Durham, was the week-end guest of Clyde Archibald of Greenland Road. The young men are classmates at Durham.

How to Fight Tuberculosis

In a paper read last year before the Essex County Medical Society and published in part in the Lowell Medical Progress, Dr. J. W. Garfield of Lowell, Mass., a physician who has devoted much time to the study of tuberculosis, said: "Since time immemorial three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the food or by the action of the secretory glands, or natural starvation causes with tuberculosis unchecked. The widespread and unchecked spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to the deplorable (due lack of) conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

Thus from another authoritative medical source comes justification for the use of time in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Since this is one of the ingredients of Bekmann's Alternative, much of the success in curing the widespread use of this remedy doubtless is due to the combination of this salt in such a way as to render it easily assimilable. It causes no stomach disturbance and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to use.

Bekmann's Alternative has effected remarkable results in numerous cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and allied chronic affections of the throat and bronchial passages. In many instances such conditions, apparently, have yielded completely to it.

In case your druggist is out of it, ask him to order, or send direct to Dr. Bekmann Laboratory, Philadelphia Sold in Portsmouth by Benjamin Green.

"MEN WE NEED TODAY MORE THAN EVER."

Every sincere man is right, or, to make him right, only needs a little larger dose of his own personality.—Emerson.

Your spiritual teacher very wisely emphasized one idea in the magnificent speech he addressed to you when he urged you to be "personalities." This is something which concerns, I believe, every Christian, for there can be no doubt that we are right when we say of our Lord that His was the most personal of all personalities that ever walked this earth.

The wish to bring about peace among all the people is magnificent, but one big mistake is generally made in all such calculations. As long as unregenerated sin rules among men, there will be war and hatred, envy and discord, and one man will try to get the better of another. The law of men, is also the law of nations.—From a speech to the men of Brandenburg by the Emperor of Germany.

NO MORE ELECTION RETURNS BY TELEPHONE

The Telephone Company is not going to attempt to give election returns this year to clubs, associations, or to individual subscribers. The reason for this decision is explained by Manager Drew:

"When the giving out of returns was first introduced," he said, "its purpose was to advertise the widespread connections of the telephone. At that time it was a very good advertisement and the public appreciated the simple bulletins of who was elected Governor or President, as the case might be. Today this advertising value is practically all, because the universality of the telephone has become a matter of fact as to be taken for granted. The element of novelty no longer exists. Moreover the complexities of modern politics have made it difficult to satisfactorily collect returns, and especially difficult for us to see that these figures are given out correctly."

"Our organization is not planned for the distribution of news but rather to make connections for other people. Therefore, the job of running young women operators to get out this complex political information once a year has been no small task."

"Many of those who call for political returns want special localized information which we are not in a position to obtain for them, and criticize rather frankly, if we are not in a position to give this information."

"It has seemed to us that we are going to a considerable expenditure for equipment and for overtime services without getting any adequate returns. In view of all these considerations and of the falling off in business this year, with the necessity for economy in operation, we decided we should discontinue the practice."

ANOTHER HALLOWE'EN PARTY*Miss Archibald Entertains Friends at Her Home.

Miss Ella Archibald entertained her friends at her home in Greenland on Saturday evening.

All kinds of Halloween games were played and also card games were indulged. The young folks followed the rope to the attic, and down to the cellar, in all places imaginable. They had to walk over pillows blindfolded, and the pillow fight furnished much merriment.

Jack-o'-lanterns were attractively used in decorating the rooms. When the luncheon was announced, buttons were distributed to the guests, and they had to match to get their partners.

The table was very attractively laid, the centerpiece being formed of a huge Jack-o'-lantern. At each plate was a candlestick made of an apple, which contained a lighted candle. Each one was presented a Jack-o'-lantern souvenir. The menu consisted of fancy sandwiches, cakes, crackers, kirchpin ice cream and candies. At the conclusion of the luncheon dancing was in order until the time of departure. Miss Anselma Ross of Rye and Miss Ella Goodwin of Portsmouth took turns in presiding at the piano.

Among those present were, Misses Constance Bartlett, Ella Goodwin, Grace Goodwin, Mildred Mahoney, Helen Leary, Anselma Ross, Irene Smith, and the Messrs. Cecil Clough, Joseph Archibald, Moses Howard, Frank Robinson, Charles Brackett, Thomas Leary, William Leary, Clyde Archibald and Philip Pennel.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS.*Death Follows Later at His Home.

Howard W. Dunton, a buffer in the electrical department at the navy yard was taken suddenly ill when reporting for work this morning. He was found unconscious by a fellow workman and taken to the yard dispensary where the yard medical force rendered what possible aid they could and ordered him removed to his home in this city. He died shortly after reaching his residence. The attending physician, Dr. A. B. Sherburne attributes his death to heart failure. He was 51 years of age and leaves a wife and a large family.

BOTH PARTIES ARE CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

vote has been cast in all the wards. Great efforts on the part of both parties have been made to get out all of the voters of the various wards. Great interest is being shown in the local candidates. It is expected that Spaulding will be elected Governor, but the Senator fight is still in doubt. The battle between Sulloway and Reed is close.

The following is a summary of the situation in the various wards:

Ward One

The polls opened promptly at 6 o'clock with Moderator William J. Callagher, presiding. The first man to enter the voting booth was Colonel Michael Crowley of Boston, who came down the night before to exercise his right of suffrage. For the first hour, voting was very lively, nearly 100 votes being cast. The voting was quite steady during the day, the party workers doing their best to get out the party vote. Up to 1 o'clock nearly 400 votes had been cast out of the 617 on the check list. At this writing it would be hard to predict the outcome as the voters were evidently taking their time in marking their ballots, and without doubt, the election officials will earn their money in counting the vote.

Ward Two

Indications are that a large vote will be cast in this ward. At noon, nearly 500 of 989 on the list, had been through. It is evident that considerable cutting is on among the Republicans and the Democrats are said to be voting for Newton for senator, and Cullill for collector. It is thought that Cy Sulloway will not get the vote expected by his party in this ward.

Ward Three

In this district, at 1 o'clock 183 votes had been cast. The Democrats are looking for a majority in the ward although Cullill for collector, Newton for senator, and Dowdell for representative, have been putting up a stiff fight throughout the day. The rumors of a split among the Democrats on the election of representative, caused some alarm to the party workers, but if any existed, it appears to have been patched up to a certain extent. The ward carries 417 voters on the list. Five certificates were granted by the board for this ward.

Ward Four

The vote of this ward came in slower up to noon and about half of the 398 had voted. The Democrats challenged several votes during the day but there was no excitement. The Republicans claim the election of W. J. Cater for representative, while the Democrats say the same of their candidate, Fred E. Gray. The Republicans will likely roll up a majority for all the county candidates in this ward, and also for Newton, their candidate for senator.

Ward Five

Ward Five voters were somewhat slow up to noon, and out of 262 only 115 had been checked off. The Hebrew voters were conspicuous about the ward all day, working in the interest of the Democratic candidate, Max Goodman. They are also said to be favoring Stevens for U. S. Senator, and helping out the vote of Cullill and Newton on the opposite ticket. The Republicans claim that no Democrat will lead on the final count, although Goodman may finish close to Clark.

CUT IN TELEPHONE RATES

The public service commission of Massachusetts has announced that the present charge of ten cents for all telephone calls from stations of subscribers to the six-party, all suburban residence service located between five and eight mile radius to points within the six central district exchanges will be reduced to five cents beginning today.

WORCESTER MAY TRY IT

Portsmouth, N. H., is another city that has made a success of an "over-the-counter sale" of its bonds. It was a small issue, only $57,000, but getting no bid when offered to the brokers, citizens were invited to take them and they were subscribed nearly three times over. Why should not Worcester try such an experiment?—Worcester Post.

Bar Harbor, Nov. 3.—At last the German steamship the Kronprinzessin Cecilie is to be moved from Bar Harbor to Boston where she will be interned until the end of the war.

Arrangements were concluded yesterday in Washington and the United States marshal's office in this city was informed that a naval officer and efficient officer would be at Bar Harbor today to move the ship.

PIANO TALKS

WHAT IS AN OPTIMIST?

"A man who, falling from a fourth-story window, is heard to murmur as he passes the first floor, 'All right so far.'" This reminds us of the deluded individuals who purchase cheap pianos. They think because the instrument looks bright and shiny and seems to "work" pretty well for the first six months or so that it is "all right." They don't realize that the life of a good piano is measured by years, almost a life time, in fact.

Any Piano Makeshift
